GEN. SHERMAN'S REPORT.

The correspondence and official report of Gen. Sherman to Gen. Grant, on the campaign of the Carolinas, is published by order of the Secretary of War, in the Official Gazette.

The report is preceded by a communication dated April 28th, in which General Sherman refers to the New York Times of the 28th, containing a budget of military news authenticated by the Secretary of War, and embracing a copy of the basis of agreement between Generals Sherman and Johnston. General Sherman complains of his plan not being kept secret until further inquiry had been made, and mentions as the reasons for his course, the character of the interviews between President Lincoln and prominent parties in Richmond, upon the subject of reconstruction .-He denies the intention of insubornination, and in conclusion promises to go on and execute the orders of the Lieutenant General. This letter has attached to it the following: -"P. S. As Mr. Stanton's singular paper has been published, I demand that this also be made putlic, though I am in no manner responsible to the press, but to the law and my proper superiors."

The following is an extract from the report: "President Lincoln's message of 1864; his amnesty proclamation; General Grant's terms to Gen. Lee, substantially extending the benefits of that proclamation to all the officers above the rank of colonel; the invitation to the Virginia Legislature to reassemble in Richmond, by General Weitzel, with the approval of Mr. Lincoln and General Grant, then on the spot; a firm belief that I had been fighting to re establish the Constitution of the United States, and last, and not least, the general universal desire to close a war any longer without any organized resistance, were the leading facts that induced me to pen the "memorandum" of April 18, signed by myself and General Johnston.

"It was designed to be, and so expressed on its tace, as a mere "basis" for reference to the President of the United States and constitutional Commander in Chief, to enable him, if he chose, at one blow to dissipate the military power of the Confederacy, which had threatened the national safety for years."

Continuing, he says that the news of the President's assassination, which reached him on the 17th, duly impressed him with its terrible atrocity and probable effect upon the country, but he saw no good reason to change his course, and thought rather to manifest respect for his memory by following, after the President's death, that policy which, if living, he felt certain Mr. Lincoln would have approved.

Gen. Sherman also refers to his letter to the Mayor of Savannah, expressing his views on the subject of reconstruction, which were not rebuked, and his impressions of the necessity of bringing the war to a close as soon as possible, for financial reasons.

. A large number of officers of Sherman's army were paid off Saturday. Among the rest a Lieutenant Colonel, who had risen from the ranks, who had not received his pay until Saturday last.
